CLAREMONT BOOMS.

Claremont Va. September it. After much effort on the part of the officers of the flethern on the part of the officers of the flethern on the part of the officers of the flethern on the part of the officers of the flethern on the part of the very large of the control of the office pepartment has agreed to inaugurate a daily mail service for this town on the night boats of the Old Dominion Steamship Company Beginning to-morrow. Sundy the night boats of that line from Richmond and Norfolk will leave mail here about 12 o'clock every night and take up pouches from here for both Norfolk and Richmond, and through mail for all points beyond. This gives Claremont mail by both the day and night boats and also by the Jouthern Railway, and places the town in closer touch with the outside world.

The Richmond, Claremont and Norfolk Development Corporation, which is opening up several large tracts of land for actilement by five and ten and twenty-acre farmers, have had quite a rush of business this week, and the development proposition is attracting attention far beyond the State limits. The corporation's illustrated booklet is being circulated all over the Middle West and the Anorth.
